A signal victory was won by the interstate commerce commission when the supreme court of the United States decided the commission has the power to compel waterlines to report to it regarding intrastate as well as interstate business. DERAILMENT DELAYED
ST. PAUL PASSENGERS

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.
This Morning and Several Trains Ran Behind Time.

Considerable trouble was caused on the St. Paul and several trains were delayed for a short time by an accident which happened about two miles this side of Milton this morning. While train No. 29 was on its way to Milton it was stopped by an engine failure and was unable to get either way. When No. 14 left here at 7:50 on its way to Milton it was stopped at the tower at Anderson to wait for the other train to be moved. While there it backed off from the derail and ran two coaches off onto the ground, preventing the extra engine which was sent up from here from getting past and blocking the track until it could be moved. The crew of the derailed train were able to get one car back on the track and putting all of the passengers in that they cleared the track enough so that the extra engine could move the crippled engine and they both went on. Traffic was opened at about ten o'clock this morning again and the trains from the north were only a few minutes late. The wrecked train was ordered out and left here about ten thirty to replace the one car which was still off at Anderson. The train to Milwaukee was two hours late however and one or two others were delayed. Conductor Dunn was in charge of the train which was the engine failure and Conductor James Cavanaugh of the one which was derailed.

ENGINEMEN CUMBED AS BUSINESS FALLS OFF.
Younger Engineers Give Place to
Older Men as Trains Are Taken Off on Account of Slack
Time.

Business is rapidly falling off through the local divisions and the younger engineers hardly know where they will be any time within the next few hours. As business decreases and the trains are taken off the older engineers get the remaining runs and the younger ones are bumped back to firing, while the firemen drop back also. Trains going north have only one car or two of coal on where a short time ago there would be twenty five or thirty cars going through at a time.

Spring was welcomed with open doors today at the round house for the first time this year.

The snow and ice which have been piled up around in the yards in various places is being gradually taken away and the yards cleaned up again after the long winter.

After the current issue the Northwestern Bulletin will be discontinued. This monthly magazine has been published for the employees of the road for some time and contained besides editorials on current topics all the interesting news of the road. Now routes were discussed and explained with pictures, records were published and accounts of all those employees pensioned etc. The publication has been supported entirely from the treasury of the railroad, no advertising having been accepted so that it was put out at quite a heavy expense. Justin W. McEachern who has been acting as editor of the magazine is planning to move to Oregon and take up his residence.

CALLS ATTENTION TO HOLY WEEK SERVICES

To the Editor:

In the rush of politics your columns have failed to contain special notice of the significance of the present week of prayer in the churches, particularly in the Catholic churches, preparatory to Easter. Centuries ago Christ came down to Jerusalem with his disciples to celebrate the Passover of the Jews. He entered on Sunday last, Palm Sunday, and his disciples and followers spread their garments before him, cut down branches of palms and in other ways proclaimed the entry of a Ruler as he rode into the city on a white ass, the emblem of peace and yet of a kindly character. Already his enemies had prepared for his death. They were plotting against him even as he rode into the city but the Son of Man journeyed on that the words of the Prophet might be fulfilled.

This week in the Catholic churches, in the two Episcopal churches and the Lutheran churches special services are held. It is a week of fasting and prayer and it might be well to recall to the minds of your readers from the worldly to the spiritual for a few hours at least.

Thursday, called Holy Thursday—the Thursday of the Lord's supper is the day when Christ at His last supper, instituted the sacrament of the Eucharist. The mass, in commemoration of that fact, is one of joy and thanksgiving, expressed by the singing of bells and the white color of the vestments and ornaments of the altar. But after the "Gloria in Excelsis" the bells are silent during the remainder of the week, until the recurrence of the hymn, "Gloria in Excelsis" on Saturday. This is intended to honor the silence of Christ during His passion, and to express the mourning of the church.

After the evening service on Holy Thursday, the priest with his assistants, divests the altars of the church of their coverings. The "antiphon diviserant" and the psalm, "Deus, Deus, meus" said by the priest and sung by the choir during this ceremony, show that it represents the stripping off of Jesus' garments.

On Good Friday, the church offers no sacrifice, nor is there any consecration of the Holy Eucharist. Instead of the Mass, there is a bare representation of the passion and the chief business of the service is to expose to the congregation Christ crucified for them. Both priest and people, after a prayer, adore Christ crucified, expressing their adoration by kneeling three times before they kiss the cross. The prayers for Holy Saturday are consecrated to the memory of Christ in the sepulchre. The altars are again clothed with their ornaments, and a new fire is blessed to illuminate them. The service begins with the lighting of a triple candle, which is emblematic of the light of Christ, and signifies that the faith of the blessed Trinity proceeds from the dead. The paschal candle blessed next by the deacon is emblematic of the body of Christ, which until, represents him dead; and the five grains of incense used in it denote the aromatic spices that embalmed him in the sepulchre. The lighting of this candle is a representation of his rising again to a new life; and the lighting of the other candles afterwards signifies that the resurrection of the dead will be followed by that of the members. Following this, the baptismal font is blessed, and the Easter or holy water is blessed.

WAS MUCH PLEASED WITH BOY SCOUTS

James E. West, Chief Scout Executive, Was Favorably Impressed on Inspection Tour.

James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, who has just completed a tour of twenty-two cities of the country with Lieutenant General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, was very favorably impressed with the work that is being done in all sections. In speaking of notable features of the scouts and their organization, Mr. West said:

"One thing which greatly impressed me not only myself but the General, was the fact that in no two cities did we witness any material duplication of the program given in other cities. It truly presented the great variety afforded by the scout program of activities. It was really wonderful to see the enthusiasm with which the boys went through some of the more difficult tasks and to witness the surprise of those in the audience, who were having their first real contact with the scout work. The real knowledge displayed and the efficiency with which they boys did their stunts including knot tying, cooking, signaling, first aid work and other activities was a cause of much favorable comment, and a great deal of surprise.

In each city there was evidence of the advanced stages in scouting and to earn the right to wear some of the various merit badges. In each city I found the local councils, and scout masters suffering from the lack of sufficient number of men to act as scout masters. It was reported that thousands and thousands of boys were anxiously waiting an opportunity to become enrolled as scouts. If men could be found to act as scoutmasters, the record already is indeed encouraging. At the present time there are six thousand men serving as scout masters and the fifteen thousand serving as members of local councils or committees.

The fact that twenty-one thousand men have in a short time definitely enrolled themselves in the movement to help solve the boy problem and produce better citizenship is in itself a tremendous testimonial as to the value of the scout movement and a very hopeful sign for the future of our country.

"Undoubtedly the trip will result in a better understanding of the scout movement, especially in the West and along the coast the impression has developed that the movement is military in character and that there is some hidden motive prompting those who are supporting the work. This was the cause for the demonstration of opposition by the socialists in Portland. After hearing our presentation of the movement in detail, one of the socialists said: 'I am not a socialist, but I am a human for all.'

Only Justifiable War.

The only war that the spirit of today can think of without shame is the indignant defense of a homeland which is a home for all.

The barometric depression that was in Texas yesterday has crossed the Mississippi valley to the Ohio valley.
The center of the disturbance was in the vicinity of Louisville at seven o'clock this morning, but its influence extended over the entire eastern half of the country. Rain was falling in the Ohio valley and the middle Atlantic states and had fallen in the lower Mississippi valley.

Another barometric depression occupies the Canadian northwest, and is attended by cloudiness in the northern Rockies, and on the northern Pacific slope.

An area of high atmospheric pressure prevails in the southwest and is the source of fair weather throughout the West.

In this vicinity the weather will probably be fair tonight and Wednesday, with little change in temperature.

Why is it, as a writer in the Holor getting it under the car? It is or

UP TO THE VOTERS.

By seven o'clock this evening the voters will have decided whom they will name as their mayor and councilmen for the next two years. The voice of the people will be expressed by their ballots. No matter who is chosen the Gazette bespeaks the hearty support of the citizens for the regime. Be it Mayor Fathers or Mayor Cronin, be it Commissioner Hall, Commissioner McNamara, Commissioner Milnor or Commissioner Cummings, for the next two years, three of these men will have the management of public affairs. It is a matter of no small importance to completely reorganize the civic affairs of such a corporation as Janesville. It means they must work solely for the best interests of the city as a whole and not for any individual or corporate interests. The office of mayor and councilmen under the new order of affairs is one of responsibility and the Gazette has faith in the selection of the people, whomever they may be. When it is all over and the votes are counted let everyone turn to and give their hearty support to the officers named and work for a bigger and better Janesville.

HATE NOT HAT IN RING.

Harper's Weekly takes up the subject of Roosevelt's campaign and treats in the following manner: "Hate is at the bottom of Roosevelt's candidacy. He knows he cannot get the republican nomination. He knows he would be beaten out of his boots if he did. Consequently he doesn't want it. His one purpose in life at this time is to beat Taft. If he can muster sufficient strength in Chicago to enforce a compromise candidate, that will suffice. If unable to fetch that result, he will demand the inclusion of his radicalism in the platform. He knows that Taft could not honorably, and consequently would not run on a platform calling for referendum of judicial decisions or recall of judges. He, therefore, will demand both, along with the initiative and referendum and any other old thing that will help to make an irreconcilable break in the party. "Meanwhile he will continue to pose as the only real Champion of the People, and will never miss a chance to stab Taft. If necessary to misrepresent his views and lie about him, he will do that, as he did in Columbus, when he stamped the president as one of those eminent lawyers who more or less frankly disbelieve in our entire system of American government, who believe and sometimes assert that the American people are not fitted for popular government."

READY FOR SPRING.

Janesville is ready for good, warm spring weather any time it can arrive safely without being slipped in the mud by a return of winter. The small boys are just heading for their baseball games and while marbles have been in vogue for some time and roller skates for both boys and girls in use for weeks, still it has been a little too cold for a real road, genuine and he is supremely happy. It means the working off of the surplus energy that even skating and coasting have not accomplished, the use of the store of dynamic power, for both lungs and muscle that marks the distinctive line between the sexes. The girl enjoys the out-of-doors of course but not like the boy. He revels in it. He would be perfectly happy to lay down and roll over in it mud and all, if he dared. He wants to slide to second just as a hot liner comes down, or yell his lungs out when the ball goes over the fence. It does him good. If he is defeated it teaches him patience, it tells him that perhaps there are some other boys who are better than he is and he keeps on trying to succeed. It stimulates his ambition to be the best player in his team, in his ward, and he dreams of victories on the diamond. It is peculiar how young the boy takes to those sports. Now he watches the bigger chaps playing, runs after the ball when it goes across the foul line, carries bats, fetches a ball of water—simply idolizes the older and more fortunate youth who permits him to "tag" for him. Then he passes through the same stage himself. He has his "fags," perhaps a younger brother, and so it goes on and even the grown-up stop and watch a game of two old cat, or a spirited contest between neighborhood nines with as much interest as they did when they were boys themselves. Baseball is a sign of spring and when you see the real games start you may know that spring is here for keeps.

Next comes the special session of the legislature. This is the opportunity of opportunity to repeal the income tax law and make other changes in other noxious laws that are most necessary.

When this question of delegates is settled, whether La Follette or Taft, Wilson or Clark, the choice of the Wisconsin republicans and democrats the next thing is to sit back and watch what other states do.

If you had no part in naming the next mayor or councilmen you have nothing to complain of if the officers elected do not do their duty according to your way of thinking.

Did you vote today? If not, the polls do not close until seven, so be sure and exercise your right of franchise before it is too late.

Milwaukee today is in the midst of the throes of socialist and anti-socialist campaign, the outcome of which will be most interesting to note.

SOUTHERN EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE ASSEMBLES FOR ANNUAL MEETING

Secretary of Interior Fisher and Senator Bailey Are Among Speakers on Program Announced.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Nashville, Tenn., April 2.—The fifteenth annual meeting of the "Conference for Education in the South" will assemble in Nashville tomorrow for a three days' session. This organization which was formed at Capon Springs in 1898, is one of the most unique in the South. Its underlying idea is to interest laymen in education as a civic responsibility. Within its membership are business men, professional men, college men, and in fact, men of nearly every walk in life. Affiliated with it are several organizations of educators, which hold their meetings at the same time and place.

Among the prominent persons who have prepared addresses or papers for the present conference are: President Robert C. Ogden of New York, Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, Congressman Martin W. Littleton of New York, St. Clair McKelway of Brooklyn, President David E. Houston of Washington University, President S. C. Mitchell of the University of South Carolina, Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, President Charles W. Dabney of the University of Cincinnati, Bishop Thomas F. Gallor of Tennessee, and Jacob M. Dickinson, former Secretary of War.

Iowa Evangelical Conference

Cedar Falls, Ia., April 2.—Between seventy and eighty clergymen and a number of lay delegates are in attendance at the Iowa conference of the Evangelical association which opened here this morning with a meeting of the Board of Conference Examiners. The conference will continue through the afternoon and will close on Sunday evening with a sermon by Bishop L. W. Allen, of Allentown, Pa.

To Study Orphanage Matters

Clinton, S. C., April 2.—The orphanage superintendents of the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida met today in annual session at the Thornwell orphanage near this city and will devote three days to the discussion and study of various matters and problems of interest to officials in charge of orphan asylums.

Birthday of Oldest Ruler

Berlin, April 2.—Duke George II., of Sax-Meiningen. The oldest of European rulers, received congratulations today to his eighty-sixth birthday anniversary. The Duke was born in 1826 and came to the throne in 1855.

"To Deum" a Hymn of the Ages.

Hallowed by old association and fraught with many memories are the great church hymns like the "To Deum," which for more than a thousand years has been the song of Christendom. It was chanted at the baptism of Clovis and sung at the jubilee of Queen Victoria. It was sung also after Agincourt and Waterloo, and on all solemn occasions when the heart of the people had been moved to thanksgiving for victory on land or sea.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By Roy K. Moulton.

SOME HOUSEHOLD INFELICITIES.

"Honest, Mayne, couldn't we sell these biscuits as paper weights?" "There you go again, wearin' my cuff links. What business have women got wearin' cuffs, anyhow? I have to tie mine together with twine half the time."

"O, you're the bright little husband, all right. We're the only family in this block that hasn't got an automobile." "Yes, my envelope is 10 cents short this week—I know it. Come now, excuse me of living a double life."

"Who in blue blazes took all of them quinine capsules? I can buy 'em by the gross and never had one when I want it."

"No, of course you ain't got a thing to wear. No woman ever had. I'd advise you to stay in the house if you haven't for you are liable to be pinched."

CAN'T PLEASE THEM.

He grew so very poorly that he was ashamed to go out and weigh, it seemed to him as though he gained at least fifteen pounds every day. His friends protested that he was so fat he really was a sight.

His waist line grew and grew until it weighed him both day and night. He bought a longer belt each week and deeply sighed for days of yore.

When, of a punctate shape, he weighed one hundred pounds, no more. He read an ad, one day which told about a fine new-fangled cure.

Which would relieve him of his flesh in manner that was safe and sure. He bought some of the Anti-Fat and took it on his daily rounds.

He took nine bottles, then he weighed and found he'd gained forty pounds.

"Ah, ha!" said he, "I'm wise at last! This stuff is not the dope for me."

He got a pamphlet "Why he thin?" and read it over carefully.

He bought the stuff it told him to. "Was guaranteed to make him thin."

And straightway most religiously, he took about nine quarts of that.

He'd guessed it right, for very soon he saw that he was getting thin. He had to have his clothes cut down.

and have the waistline taken in. His friends were worried once again and told him he was falling fast. And that he should be big and fat. Just like he had been in the past. So far as his friends were concerned, he couldn't please 'em either way.

RULES FOR THE TURKO.

ITALIAN WAR.
It seems as though a great many persons are being hurt unnecessarily. In that Turko-Italian war by standing around in the way, and chasing over the battlefields picking daisies and holding family picnics during the progress of battles, and we have compiled the following rules which will doubtless relieve the situation:

Women with baby cars shall stay 100 feet away from both parties.

Automobile parties shall not spread their lunches between the opposing armies when they are advancing upon each other.

Cripples and persons with inflammatory rheumatism shall not be allowed to cross the battlefield while the fight is in progress.

Sightseeing parties and persons with cameras shall not approach within 40 feet of any battle, for a battle is liable to spread out or change its base at any moment.

Rubbernecks shall not steal the buttons from the uniforms of the major-generals for souvenirs, particularly while the latter are in the heat of battle. These things are very distracting.

Montenegrins shall not make love to pretty girls seated in automobiles on the sidelines, for the girls' escorts are liable to grow peevish and start something.

Soldiers desiring to shoot shall shoot in the air. It makes as much noise and there is no liability of puncturing a moving picture man or a popcorn vendor.

WHERE THE MAN WOULD BE.
A person interested in suffrage for women, was making a little talk a short time ago and in the course of her remarks said: "Give women the credit she deserves and where will man be?"

"If she gets all the credit she wants," spoke up a vulgar person in the rear of the hall, "he will be in the bankruptcy court or in the poor-house."

Beware of Fits of Passion.

The very instant you perceive yourself in a passion shut your mouth and keep it shut until your blood cools. This advice, if always followed, would save many a life of bitterness and of deep, incurable anguish.

Mrs. A. A. Swagel, Rock, Wis., invariably uses Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds. "I always use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for my children as I know it will cure their coughs and colds and they like to take it." Badger Drug Co.

Chinese Salutation.
The Chinese salutation consists of clapping the left hand with the right and waving it up and down, at the same time bowing deeply; or, if unusual respect is wished to be evinced, the Chinaman bows as low as is possible, swinging his clasped hands backwards and forwards.

Where Samson Would Shine.
A fond father rendered a dull Sunday afternoon pleasant by telling his small son Bible stories. By and by he told how Samson carried away the great gates of Gaza. Said the son, who had learned much through many fiddlings: "Oh, daddy, wouldn't he be a fine moving man?"

Popularity of "Rock of Ages."
When Toplady in 1776 wrote the "Rock of Ages" he could not have conceived that it would become so widely known or so popular among all shades of religious opinion. It was this hymn that Mr. Gladstone translated into three languages, and which the Prince Consort asked for when on his deathbed.

On Life's Journey.
We are not made to be good in this world, but to try to be, and fall and keep on trying; and when we get a cake to eat, "Thank God!" and when we get a buffet to eat, "Just so; well hit!"—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Sonnet's Duty Laid Out.
The poet stopped, as the boy rushed up almost breathless. "Say," said the boy, "your wife says she forgot to tell you that if you sell that love song you are to fetch a hum home, an' if it won't buy a ham, 'praps it'll be equal to a can o' salmon."

Humankind's Perversity.
What is remote and difficult of success we are apt to overrate; what is really best for us lies always within our reach, though often overlooked.—Longfellow.

As It Sounded to Him.
"I think," said Mrs. Camrox, who was arranging a musical programme, "that we will have a mezzo-soprano." "All right," replied her husband. "Don't bother me about it. Go ahead and see an architect."

HEAVY VOTE SHOWS VOTERS' INTEREST IN THE OUTCOME

FIRST AND FIFTH WARDS ONLY ONES BEHIND A YEAR AGO VOTE AT ONE O'CLOCK.

RETURNS WILL BE LATE

Too Many Different Ballots to be Counted Will Cause Some Delay in Learning Final Results.

Whoever are elected mayor and councilmen, Janesville will have the satisfaction of knowing that practically every voter in the city took part in today's election. If the vote at one o'clock is any criterion it means an exceptionally heavy vote before the polls close at seven this evening.

It is hard to figure out, who will be elected as councilmen. There are almost as many combinations as there are candidates. The vote for mayor looks as though Mr. Paterson would win out with a good majority, but who his two companions will be is hard to say. McNamee is making a strong run throughout the city as a whole, as is Hall. Milwaukee is strong in the Fourth and Fifth wards, Cummings being second choice as far as can be seen in these two wards. The Third and First appear to be for McNamee and Hall, the lower end of the Third giving Milwaukee a good vote. In the Second it is hard to estimate, although Cummings' men claim he will poll a good vote here with Hall and McNamee following.

There are so many tickets to vote and so many to be counted, it is hard to figure out just when the final results will be known. Separate ballots for the city officers, for the judges, for the delegates to the national party conventions and for the bridge question are confusing to the voters and to the judges who will have to count them. The following was the vote throughout the city in the various wards at one o'clock as compared to the vote in 1911 and 1910:

	1912	1911	1910
First Ward	235	230	230
Second Ward	231	209	214
Third Ward	205	225	223
Fourth Ward	204	229	257
Fifth Ward	167	172	134

TO GIVE RETURNS ON THE ELECTION

May However, Be Late Owing To Number of Ballots To Be Counted.

The Gazette will post the election returns as fast as received at the office this evening. The bulletin boards will be used and it will undoubtedly be late before the count is made.

ROCK RIVER TWO INCHES HIGHER THAN YESTERDAY

Reached Twenty-nine and One-half Inches at Six O'clock This Morning—Drops and Rises Again.

The Rock river at this point, which was 26 inches over the government mark at ten o'clock yesterday morning, has been rising steadily most of the time since. At noon yesterday it reached 27 1/2 inches; at three o'clock 28 1/2 inches. This morning the water gauge registered 29 1/2 inches at six o'clock. It had sunk to 28 inches at eight o'clock and 27 1/2 at noon, but at one o'clock had again risen to 28 inches. No reports of sudden rises have been received from further up the river and unless prolonged heavy rains fall within the next few days no serious trouble from high water is anticipated.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Told to Hurry Home. Larry Sullivan, a Detroit man who was dismissed from jail here a week ago, was arrested last night on a charge of drunkenness. He plead guilty to the charge in municipal court this morning and Judge Phipps ordered him to be released that he be allowed to go home, on condition that he start at once. A ten day full sentence awaits Larry if he does not keep his promise.

Is Prostrated. Word was received this morning that Mrs. Edward Matthews, who is visiting in Bernadine, Minn., is at the home of a friend prostrated with grief over the death of her husband, the late Edward Matthews, who died in Chicago on Friday morning and was buried here on Sunday. Mrs. Matthews was not notified of her husband's death until two late Saturday evening to reach Janesville in time for the funeral.

New Cars on Interurban. Two of the new cars on the Rockford Interurban line reached Janesville this morning. These cars are longer than the ordinary car and it is reported that a through car service between Janesville and points south of Rockford is to be established shortly.

CARD OF THANKS.
We desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the friends and neighbors for their kindness during the sickness and death of our loved one,
Mrs. Mae Allen,
Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Allen,
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weary,

Sport of the Antipodes.
A favorite sport in New Zealand, as also in Australia and Tasmania, is competition in wood chopping and sawing; and in these contests, which attract a great deal of interest, the championships are always won through the use of American tools. In fact the expert woodman working for a prize would never think of using any other kind of tools.

Strong Ones.
"My dear, these are excellent cigars, but they are awfully strong." "Yes; I got the strongest I could find. They won't break so easily in your pocket."—Judge.

CHANGE MANAGEMENT OF MACHINE COMPANY

Heads Named for Each of Six Departments—Business Flourishing—Let Contract for New Plow Shop.

In order to care for their rapidly growing business and the increasing output of the Janesville Machine company management has been organized into six different departments, each of which will have its superintendent. All of these departments will be under the direct supervision of J. A. Craig, general manager. Fred L. Smith will be superintendent of the department of manufacturing. A. S. Krotz of development and experimenting. C. E. Sanders of the purchasing, stock, and shipping department. W. E. Bosworth of accounts and finance. F. H. Farnsworth of collections and claims, and H. M. Craig of sales and advertising.

The Janesville Machine company is having an exceptional demand for its goods and is running its plow shop until nine o'clock every night except Saturday night in order to keep up with the demand. The outlook for continued good business and a steady increase in the demand is very encouraging.

Plans have been drawn and the contract let for the construction of a two-story absolutely fireproof steel and concrete plow shop, 143 feet square, to be erected at the corner of Center and River streets on the site of the present plow shop. The second story of the building will be connected with the others by bridges. When completed the building will be the finest plow shop in the state. It had been hoped that work could be started on its erection by the first of June, but on account of the protracted trade and the late spring the beginning will have to be postponed until later.

NOT TO DISTRIBUTE BOOKS TO DISTRICTS

District School Boards May Receive Blue Books Only by Filing Out Application Blanks.

Under the provisions of a law enacted at the last session of the legislature the county superintendent is no longer given a consignment of Blue Books for distribution to the district schools throughout the county. Should teachers and school boards find these books desirable they may apply to Superintendent of Public Property Wm. L. Esman at Madison, and receive an application blank which when fully filled out by the district school board and returned to Madison will entitle the district to a Blue Book which will be sent free of charge.

"Every school district in the county should have a Blue Book," said the county superintendent today. "They are valuable for reference work both for the teachers and pupils and hope that every board will take the necessary measure to get them. I have advised the teachers to write for the application blanks and to see that the board members fill them out. The law relieved this office of some little work in distributing the books, but I am anxious that each district should be supplied."

The county clerk today received the consignment of Blue Books for Rock county. They have been distributed to the following officials: Judge of Circuit Court, Judge of county court, each of municipal courts, clerk of county court and clerk of circuit court, county clerk, district attorney, chairman of the county board, and county superintendent.

TODAY'S EVANSVILLE NEWS

BELOVED RESIDENT OF EVANSVILLE WAS CALLED YESTERDAY

Dr. Charles M. Smith, One of Oldest Physicians in County, Passed Away After Long Illness.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, April 2.—Dr. Charles M. Smith, died yesterday morning at his home in this city. Dr. Smith had been confined to his room for the past five years and while his death was not wholly unexpected his condition had not been much worse. He fell asleep on his couch yesterday morning and members of the family who came into his room on several occasions found him sleeping peacefully. Mrs. Smith brought him his dinner later in the morning and when she spoke to him he failed to answer. She found that he had passed beyond the border never to return. Death had come quietly and peacefully while he slept.
Dr. Smith was born in Cattaraugus county, New York, June 25th, 1834 and came to Wisconsin in 1854. He was married to Miss Julia Fawin, May 16, 1861, who with a son and one daughter, survives him. Mrs. Flora Gordon lives at Lodi, Wis., and Dr. Chas. M. Smith Jr., is a resident of this city. He also leaves three grandchildren and numerous other relatives.
Before taking up the study of medicine, Dr. Smith had taught school at Footville, Wis., and later in Evansville. He acted in the capacity of clerk of Evansville school board for fourteen consecutive years. In politics he was a firm republican and served the village faithfully as president of the village board for several terms previous to its incorporation as a city.

He was one of the oldest and most highly respected physicians of Rock county. He first entered upon his study of medicine in 1856 with the late Dr. James M. Evans, Sr., as his preceptor. Later he entered Rush Medical School at Chicago, from which he graduated in 1860. He began to practice his profession at Footville two years later, but was appointed assistant surgeon of the Thirtieth Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry soon after and served in that capacity throughout the Civil War.

After the war he returned to Evansville where he was received into partnership by Dr. Evans and continued to practice with him for eighteen years. In 1873 he took a special course at the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York, and in 1883 he was made an honorary member of the Wisconsin Pharmaceutical Association. He was also a member of numerous other distinguished medical organizations including the American Medical Association, the State Medical Society and the Central Wisconsin Medical Association.
Dr. Smith continued in his practice until about five years ago when failing health forced him to retire. Dr. Smith had a large circle of true friends in Evansville and in the county. All who knew him as a man were impressed with his sterling qualities and his influence as a physician will long be felt in the city. He was a prominent member of the Masonic order being a member in the following lodges: Union Lodge No. 2, F. & A. M.; Evansville Chapter No. 35, R. A. M.; and Janesville Commandery No. 2, K. T. He was also a member of Leota Lodge.

Keeping Down The Cost Of Living.

THE present high cost of living will teach us some things worth knowing. For one thing, we will learn to discriminate between the essential and non-essential. We will become more critical, and that is a great need of the American public of today. We are not critical, and so we are bunched and victimized in many ways. We pay out our money to those who blow their trumpets the loudest and longest, and in their deafening noise made we seem incapable of scrutinizing the goods we get, to see if we have an honest equivalent for the cash we have handed over. But now that our cash is becoming somewhat limited, we are looking a little more carefully to see what we receive for it. We want to know if we get a pound that is sixteen ounces; if most of the worth of what we buy is in the gorgeous wrappings; if our money goes into the stylish equipage that draws up in front of our door to deliver the goods, instead of into the goods themselves. We are beginning to think, when we are eating soaked sawdust, whether we are eating it because Beating Hob beams, or because the sawdust is really muscle-making. And so it the high cost of living will bring us to considering these things, and to acting upon the result of our consideration, we will not have paid too dear.

For these are some of the things we are recommended to do by the State Superintendent of Weights and Measures of one of our Eastern States to reduce the cost of living.

This astute gentleman who has been studying some of the wily ways of merchants—not "Wiley" ways, for if these were in practice, housewives would have little cause to complain—and he has issued a little booklet of "Don'ts for Housewives." Among his rules are:

"Don't buy in a careless manner. Don't ask for a cupful, five cents' worth, a package, a glass jar, a bucket or a tub. These terms mean nothing in the law. Say a pound, quart or gallon, or whatever quantity you want.

"Don't buy in small quantities, if you can avoid it. Poor people frequently purchase butter a quarter of a pound at a time. If the butter is on a wooden dish weighing one ounce, the purchaser in paying for a pound of butter, in reality pays for three-quarters of a pound of butter and one-quarter of a pound of dish.

"Don't let fancy packages fascinate you. Loose goods are more economical, for the buyer generally pays for the paper, printing and wrapper, to the detriment of the weight.

"Don't be afraid to carry a bundle. A baker who will deliver your bread will frequently deliver a lighter loaf than the one purchased over the counter.

"Don't gossip with the merchant while he weighs your purchases. The dishonest butcher or grocer will often engage his customer in conversation to distract attention from the scales. When he does this, you lose money."

The thing to do now is to try to follow these suggestions. The woman who does buy carelessly or in small quantities should try to plan her buying in accord with the advice here given, and thus ultimately reduce her grocery bill. And though the honest merchants far outnumber the dishonest ones, housekeepers should weigh their groceries, and when they find they are being cheated, they should at once stop dealing at the store that is defrauding them, and go elsewhere. This would soon put the dishonest man out of business, and be an encouragement to the man who is square. A woman is foolish to allow herself to be wilfully cheated, and she is unfair to the man who is trying to do an honest business. The man who takes several ounces off your meat can seem to sell it for less than the man who gives you a full pound. And so probably you deal with him, thinking you are saving, when in reality, you are not getting as much in real value as you would from the man who is square.

If the present high cost of living brings an awakening in these matters, and it can not be brought in any other way, we should rejoice rather than complain.

The KITCHEN CABINET

It is not the evolution which destroys machinery, but the friction.

HOUSEKEEPING DON'TS.

Don't put off the cleaning of boxes and drawers until warm days come, when being out of doors is such a pleasure. Much of the work can be done on rainy days except, of course, the airing of clothing.

House cleaning now ought to be nothing more than an extra cleaning and sweeping day. The rugs can be taken out, laid on the ground and cleaned. Never hang a heavy rug on the line, as it breaks and ruins them. Rugs should not be shaken, either, as the threads are easily broken and the fringe, if any, torn off.

Don't forget to plan the spring so that some of each day may be spent enjoying the lovely weather. If housekeepers took more recreation their work would be better, and much happier, accomplished.

Don't forget that it is much better to keep well and happy than to have the reputation of being the best housekeeper in town, valuable as that may be to you.

Don't forget to plan out your vegetable garden on paper, order the seeds and have everything ready for the busy time when gardens must be made.

Lettuce may be grown for the table at least two weeks ahead of the open ground sowing, by preparing a box set into the ground and covered with thin cheese cloth, through which the rain can penetrate. The cloth protects the tender plants at night and they grow like weeds when the sun warms them.

Don't allow your reserve shelf for hospitality to get low, as unexpected company will find you unprepared.

Don't neglect to wear a close veil when out on a windy day. Just is a great menace to health, and many microbes lodge on grains of dust.

Don't try to prepare too elaborate a meal for company. Simple food well served is most pleasing. A roasted chicken for first course is too often seen at many tables.

LITTLE SOUP FOR WEAK STOMACHS.

"Very little soup should be taken, as it has little nutritive value, and dilates the stomach," says Legrand, a noted French authority (Annals of Medicine). Many of the articles used in soups, including animal fats and beef extracts, have little or no food value, and the digestion of green vegetables differs so much from that of flesh or even cereals, that they should be taken separately. There are conditions in which liquid diet is beneficial, but as a rule it is best for the dyspeptic to eat the solid food and drink separately, aside from the fact that soups may contain objectionable substances.

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON

SHE means so well that I suppose it is a shame to find fault with her, but really—

"She" is the ultra-enthusiast. Enthusiasm is undoubtedly one of the qualities that most easily wins popularity. Everyone likes a man or woman who is a live and interesting enthusiast. That's one of the reasons why we all love the young folks so—because they haven't yet lost their enthusiasm.

But just as high as the balance rises in favor of a reasonable degree of enthusiasm just so low I think it sinks under an unreasonable degree of unbalanced and forced enthusiasm.

Perhaps I'm unjust in calling it "forced" and "un-natural," but truly, I can't believe that any such abnormal amount of fervor and emotion as the ultra-enthusiast displays on every occasion is entirely natural and spontaneous.

Of course, you know her type. Everyone does.

She is always in a fever of enthusiasm over something or other. Sometimes it's her own affairs, and sometimes it's yours. She has always just had the latest thing, or she has the most interesting thing to tell you, or she's just found the most wonderful bargain. Superlatives are the breath of life to her. She really couldn't live without them. So are gestures and exclamations, terms of endearment and continual laughter. She couldn't any more talk for five minutes without this sort of an accompaniment than an ordinary person could talk without a tongue.

You ought to be delighted when her enthusiastic interest turns towards yourself, and perhaps you do enjoy it in homopathic doses. But if you ever have to take her alopathically, you are sure to be sickened.

And all the time she is wondering why, when she takes such an interest in people and means so well, they don't like her better—that is, if she is a person of sufficient discernment to know that they don't.

Poor creature. She is one of the most pitiable examples of wasted energy I know of. Half that enthusiasm would be delightful and would probably win her the popularity for which she longs so eagerly. Whereas the whole sum of it is wearing and tiring, and drives people away or makes them laugh at her.

Isn't it too bad that she has not some friend who loves her well enough to be kindly cruel and open her eyes to that waste of energy?

Perhaps she has. Perhaps I am talking to some such friend even now, and he or she has already decided to be brave enough to try to help, tactfully if possible, decisively anyway.

I sincerely hope so.

Bas-Reliefs of the Stone Age.

Some large bas-reliefs dating from the Stone Age have just been discovered at Laussel, in the French province of Dordogne. They are sculptured on the rock of a shallow grotto, and solely represent animals. It is thought that the primitive sculptors probably refrained from introducing the human figure in art by a taboo similar to the present Mohammedan taboo on such representation. The animals shown in the reliefs are reindeer, oxen, bison, and a huge horse of prehistoric dimensions.

Use of Cement Saves Bridges.

At Hamburg, there are two bridges the masonry of which was threatening to fall in ruins, being traversed by innumerable cracks of varying size. A remarkable process has just been made use of to rejuvenate these bridges. A number of holes were bored through out the structure so as to give access to the interior and cement was injected by pumps under pressure. Reports on the present condition of the two bridges are favorable.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Housekeeping Progress—Sometime There Will Surely Be No Dishwashing.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

Those who write about housekeeping generally feel constrained to say that it is a tedious science but, before you subscribe to this fully, take up an old cook book and see how much of it is adapted to the cookery of today. Read about curing meats, drying fruits, making yeast, frying out lard and then look at your first class cooker, possibly at the dinner cooking in a paper bag, in a gas oven, at the shelf of canned fruits or even at the humble but powerful vacuum cleaner and feel assured that domestic science moves along within speaking distance of other sciences. It must do so because conditions of living are changing all the time.

The time may not be far off when women will commonly cook their dinners wrapped in paper in a box heated by electricity and they will serve the food on dishes that will be burned along with the paper napkins. However electrical cooking devices will have to fall considerably in price. Extended experiments are now being made with paper plates that will be porous and absorbent and pleasing to look at as well as serviceable for a single use.

Paper drinking cups, napkins, plates for holding food temporarily, bags for cooking, milk and vinegar bottles and folding boxes for food have already made some reduction in dishwashing.

When that drudgery is eliminated a woman will approach her kitchen with less dread. Often the remark is heard that "it isn't so much getting the dinner that I dislike as the clearing up after it." Surely ways of cooking that avoid greasy dishes and utensils that may be cremated will help greatly to reconcile more women to the work that inevitably falls to most of them to do.

A savory way of cooking spaghetti makes it taste much like that prepared by Italian cooks. Shiner a quart can of tomatoes until reduced one-half then press through a strainer to take out the seeds. Melt one-quarter cup of butter, add a roundish tablespoon of flour and cook together until brown. Add the strained tomato, a roundish tablespoon of finely minced green pepper which is found in large markets all the year round, be sure to discard all the seeds or the taste will be rank. Add one-half pound of spaghetti cooked half an hour in boiling salted water. Turn onto a serving dish and grate some cheese over the top; serve at once while piping hot.

The bone and jagged lean and fat remnants of a boiled ham are often thrown away because they appear so uninviting. Perhaps the same day a little can of deviled ham is brought for sandwiches that might be made of these fragments.

Cut all the meat from the bone and take off any hard bits of rind but no matter if you do not like the fat of ham and always discard it on your plate it must be used in this case in the proportion of one-quarter to one-third of meat. Run the scraps through a meat grinder or chop them in a level bowl very fine or almost to a paste.

Before beginning to chop the meat scatter on a little paprika and more generously of mustard over than the seasoning will be well blended by the chopping. More seasoning may be needed and sometimes other spices may be added according to the taste. Pack the meat in little jars, cover with melted paraffine and it will keep a week or more even in hot weather.

MATCHLESS FLOUR

You know that water poured upon sand is quickly absorbed and that water poured upon dust remains at the top in a puddle while the bottom of the dust pile remains dry.

This is true of Christian's Matchless Flour and other Flours.

Because Matchless Flour is made up of minute granules it quickly absorbs the water that you use in mixing, and kneads into perfect dough.

Matchless Flour is first of all a skillful blend of hard Northern Spring wheat for lightness and raising qualities and our own Red Winter Wheat for flavor and smoothness—granulated—not ground—by a scientific process and sifted, and granulated and sifted over and over again until it feels as soft and smooth as velvet.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A MODEST HERO.

By A. W. MACY.

At one time when the cause of Italian independence seemed to be ruined, hundreds of brave men who had fought for it sought refuge in the United States. Among them was General Garibaldi. In the summer of 1890 he reached New York, where he was solicited to "accept an ovation." He modestly asked to be excused, saying that to make a public exhibition of himself was unnecessary and would not help the cause; nor would the American people, he thought, esteem him less because he veiled his sorrows in privacy. All he asked was to be allowed to earn his living by honest labor, and remain under the protection of the American flag until the time should come for renewing the fight for liberty which had been interrupted for a season. So from being a general in the patriot army of Italy Garibaldi became for a time a candle maker on Staten Island, and then resumed his old calling of mariner.

EDGERTON WOMAN IS SUMMONED BY DEATH

Mrs. William Hutson Passed Away
Yesterday Morning After An Illness of Four Weeks—
Other News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, April 2.—The citizens of Edgerton again are saddened over the death of Mrs. William Hutson, which occurred yesterday shortly after eleven o'clock at the family home in the west part of the city. Sick and ailing for the past four weeks, her ailment was not considered dangerous, but a change for the worse set in Thursday afternoon, this time affecting her heart, and her condition at once became alarming and ultimately caused sudden death.

The deceased, whose maiden name was Jane Cowling, was born near Toronto, Canada, Sept. 4, 1838. When six years of age, she came with her parents to Appleton, settling in this vicinity. On July 4, 1861, she was united in marriage to William Hutson, and the family has resided in Edgerton and city since. Besides the grief-stricken husband she leaves a mother, Mrs. Mary Baker of Spring Green; two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Seufelt of Fulton township; Mrs. S. P. Parker, of Portland, Oregon; and three brothers, George Cowling of Fulton township, and Charles and John Cowling of Spring Green. For many years she has been a member of the Congregational church of this city, also a member of the Royal Neighbors and W. R. C.

The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock at the residence, conducted by her pastor, Rev. E. W. Schoenfeld. Interment will be made in the family lot in Forest cemetery.

Edgerton News Notes.

H. C. Schmeling went to Chicago this morning for a day or two on business.

Mrs. M. J. Cunningham returned to-day from Lehi where she was called one week ago on account of the death of her father.

Mrs. Frank McIntosh and two children of Viroqua are here on a visit with the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jovett Farman.

Alfred Thronson and bride returned this morning from their wedding trip, which they spent in Milwaukee and Elkader, Iowa.

Miss May Spencer and Miss Bruner are spending a few days in Chicago. During their absence Fred Campbell of Milton has charge of the jewelry store.

A church shower was given last night at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Holtan in the north part of the city which was participated in by about thirty young ladies of the city. Each lady brought some fancy article and the same was put on display and sale at the Easter fair and supper held tomorrow afternoon and evening. The evening was spent in games, a short program was rendered, and at the close delicious refreshments were served by Mesdames Tall, Wilman and Holtan.

Hooded Her Hair.

Another black mark has been chalked down against number thirteen.

"I did up my hair the other night in curl papers torn from an old calendar," said the pretty girl, "and in the morning when I took it down I had a row of beautiful curls all around my head except right over the left temple. That lock was as straight as a lead pencil, and I had dampened it with lemon juice just like all the others, but when I unrolled the paper I found out why it wouldn't curl. The paper I had twisted it over was the thirteenth of the month."

Navajo Blankets.

Much unadvised nonsense has been written concerning the symbolism of Navajo Indian blankets, and the poetry, legend, tradition and history woven by the squaw into its fabric. It is true that some designs have a symbolic meaning, but Hopi, Zuni and Apache symbols are used quite as freely as those peculiar to the Navajos. The Navajo squaw is one of the least imaginative and least poetical of human beings, and it is quite safe to say that even when symbolic designs are employed in blanket weaving it is without the remotest reference to their true significance.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD AT INSTITUTE

Senator John M. Whitehead Gave Address Sunday Evening at School For Blind in Honor of Mrs. Little.

Special Memorial exercises were held Sunday evening at the Wisconsin School for the Blind in honor of the former Superintendent Mrs. Sarah C. Little. The address of the evening was given by Senator John M. Whitehead. He paid a marked tribute to this wonderful woman who for thirty years was connected with the first benevolent institution of the State of Wisconsin. The theme of Senator Whitehead's address was that the history of the state is made up of the history of the lives of the men and women who lived at the time the history is made.

Mrs. Little was one of the great women whose life and deeds have added much to the history of the great State of Wisconsin. She came to the School for the Blind when the institution was new, and stamped upon the school a character and an influence which only great souls can stamp. She was a woman of fine ancestry, born in a college town, raised under influences which inspired to noble deeds, and with her natural talents could not fail to make an impression upon the world and to accomplish great things. She had the strength of mind and viewpoints of a man, coupled with the tenderness, sympathy and motherly tenderness of a woman.

She did a great work in the institution, but her work was not confined to the institution, for as a citizen and a Christian she was a leader in founding the Janesville Public Library, was a counselor in the church and an inspiration to the community. Perhaps the most striking tribute which was given to Mrs. Little were extracts read from letters of two alumni of the Wisconsin School for the Blind, addressed to one of Mrs. Little's daughters.

"I have recently received word of the death of your mother and of our Mrs. Little. Although many years have passed since I was one of Mrs. Little's school pupils, nevertheless I feel her presence in my life and will so long as I live."

"I was under her care from the time I was eleven years old until I was sixteen years; that means a great deal in one's development. It was Mrs. Little who led me to begin the Christian life. It was her influence and counsel that started me in right ways in the years of adolescence. Now that I know more about life and very much more about the training of young people, I realize that Mrs. Little conducted a school that was unique and remarkably effective for its purpose. She was assuredly a woman of quality and of character and of heart. She did a fine work and left a name not engraved on tablets of stone, but written in the hearts of living men and women."

From another letter:

"Yesterday was the anniversary of your mother's birth and for years that day has not passed unnoticed by me, but because of her recent death it was profoundly impressed by a day of this year, and my mind was busy all day with the scenes and events of my life in which she was a dominant factor, teaching, counseling, correcting and in every way striving to develop character in me. It was not only by word that she taught us, for her own splendid character was a beautiful exemplification of all the precepts she endeavored to inculcate, and frequently since my school days I have viewed difficult problems in the light of her teaching."

I entered the school at Janesville just a year after your mother's appointment to the Superintendentcy and throughout my school connection she was the guiding influence in my life. We of Wisconsin who for thirty years came in contact with your mother and were benefited by all that her kind heart could suggest and her clear mind devised are today participating in your sorrow, and we all feel a deep sympathy for you and your sisters in this great bereavement. I last met your mother at the Jubilee in Janesville, and she rejoiced with us and was gratified with the way her old boys and girls had kept the faith and were promoting right principles for the advancement of our cause."

Mrs. Little lived at a time when great events were occurring in the history of this nation, in a time which produced great men and women, but she is conceded by all who know her to be a peer among the great of her time. She was at home with the leaders of great movements. She was at home with the poor and the sorrowful and distressed. Her presence was always a welcome and her counsel sought. She helped to write the history of her times. Through her influence upon those with whom she came in contact she is helping to write the history of the present and through their influence will help to write the history of the future. She has left to the world, and especially to the Wisconsin School for the Blind an inspiration and a guide which can not fail to impress itself upon all those who are privileged and honored to attend this institution.

Really Good Manners.

What then are good manners? Simply a fine and always thoughtful consideration for the feelings and comfort of others; polite and kindly address to "inferiors" as to equals or "superiors;" graciousness, which is also grace, under all circumstances; and with women especially, no matter whether in drawing room or office, that "low, soft voice," which Shakespeare declares to be "an excellent thing in women."

Geniuses Not Good Companions.

The wife of Charles Dickens is reported to have once said: "I suppose the world needs a few geniuses, but it's a dreadful fate to have to live with one of them." Mrs. Carlyle said the same thing in substance a great many times.

FARMS AND CITIES SHOW DEVASTATION OF RISING FLOODS

Break in Mississippi Levee Near Hickman, Ky., Last Night, Allows Rising Waters to Inundate Large Area.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Hickman, Ky., April 2.—Dawn today revealed something of the damage done here last night when the water of the Mississippi river reached and broke through the West Point levee and sent a current through the town. From hill to hill the river flows this morning, covering farms and flooding stores and factories.

Ten Thousand Homeless.

Ten thousand persons are homeless. With the coming of daylight the work of caring for the refugees was taken up. They were temporarily sheltered by residents of the highlands last night and tents were shipped by the state military and will arrive today. The organization of the food supply was much concerned. Much of the supply was destroyed in the rush of water and there are not enough provisions on hand to last throughout the week.

Break in Levee.

The west end of the levee went out about 9:30 o'clock last night at a point which had been considered the strongest. Men who had been working in ditches for four days to reinforce the levee stood by their posts all day in a driving rain. Some of them had gone home to rest and most of the inhabitants were in bed when the crash came.

The patrol at once sounded the warning signal agreed upon, then started in boats which had been moored for this emergency since the fight with the river began and rowed across on the crest of the river.

Suspend All Work.

All work is suspended and those whose homes were endangered or sheltered in the hills for safety, but there was much distress among the women and children before they were housed for the night. At midnight all the occupants of the homes on the Mississippi shore were warned to flee as the levee was in imminent danger of breaking there.

The water is two feet higher than was ever before known and is expected to rise two feet more.

Slamming English.

The proprietors of a Slamesse newspaper have distributed handbills containing the following notice: "The news of English we tell the latest. Write in perfectly style and must ear-leaf. Do a murder kit consult, we hear of and tell it. Do a mighty chief die, we publish it, and in borders of sombre. Start has each one been collected, and write like the Kipling and the Dickens. We circulate every town and extortionate not for advertisements. Buy it. Buy it. Tell each of you its greatness for good. Ready on Friday, Number First." Everybody's Magazine.

As It Is Today.

The modern child, if it has intelligence enough to know what is going on, must often regard its parent as an intolerable nuisance.—Exchange.

ON INDIGESTION OR SICK STOMACH

Hearburn, Gas, Sourness and Dyspepsia End in Five Minutes With Pape's Diapiesin.

Take your sour out-of-order stomach—no matter how bad in indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of the Stomach; it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and let you eat one 25-grain Triangulo and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring; the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is sickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or if your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapiesin.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

TO A FATHER.

You say Jimmie is twelve? Then it is high time to make Jimmie your chum.

While he was more baby than boy it was proper his mother should have personal charge. He could tell her everything and she could help him in everything. She knew where he was and what he was doing.

It is different now. The boy is big enough to be called James, and secretly he longs for long trousers. Unconsciously perhaps he is tugging to get loose from his mother's apron strings.

He begins to be a man. This is your chance to get close to him. Jimmie wants a mate to confide in. You can be the mate. He would rather be your pal than to take up with any other person on earth.

The danger is this: He may become ashamed or afraid to confide in you. And if he is either he may take up with some harem scum of the street.

Some fathers are too dignified or stern, proceeding on the theory that a son must recognize the parental authority. They lay down the law and punish the least infraction of it, believing that will keep the boy straight.

Such monstrous government will doubtless keep him from wrongdoing—where it can be found out.

You see, the danger is that Jimmie, being afraid of you, may become a sneak. He may not tell you the truth. He may deceive you. He may become not only a sneak, but a liar.

Also—If Jimmie is ashamed to tell you about some things, he may do some things of which he should be ashamed.

My dear sir, it is possible to so hold your son that he will tell you everything—everything. Nothing is too delicate for a father and son to talk about—if they are chums.

Jimmie must know from some source the things you know about life. How much better you should tell him than some other. Do you want your boy to face temptation ignorantly or wrongly informed?

What are you here for? To make money for Jimmie?

No. You are here to make a man of Jimmie. If he fails in that it will largely be your fault. If he succeeds it will be the joy and the triumph of your life.

No More Income Needed.

"Uncle Joe, do you believe in votes for women?"

"No, sir. I don't. Manda's got all de money dat's good for her now."

SIDEWALK SKETCHES.

HISTORY.

By Howard L. Rahn.

History is a collection of cold-blooded facts relating to somebody who is not able to defend himself on account of being dead. There are two kinds of history—ancient and modern. Ancient history is the more popular of the two, as there are so few people present who have a clear recollection of what happened. This kind of history is always written by some author with a keen and retentive memory, and who will either an eye-witness or secured his facts from immediate relatives of the deceased. Every once in a while some author with a better memory than his predecessors puts out a new ancient history with limp binding and lurid style, and introduces a new chronological order, and several original obituary notices, which make very wholesome and cheerful reading for the long winter evenings. There are so many ancient historians on the market nowadays that the average high school student can't tell whether the battle of Gettysburg was fought in C. or A. D. Modern history deals with people who are more or less alive, and is usually written at a safe distance from the individual who is being dissected. History writing is a very pleasant occupation as all that is required is a lively imagination and a stub pen. The late Mr. Putnam wrote one of our latest histories, giving a number of confidential anecdotes about people who at one time made quite a noise in army and navy circles. We should enjoy Mr. Putnam's book better if it had a little more conversation and an occasional drizzling room scene, but he seems to have no trouble in selling it. The best kind of history is the family kind, which deals largely with cutting the first teeth and translating the language of the twins. People will remember this kind of history when all other varieties are tucked in back of the second row in the book case.

BY WALT MASON

The baseball season soon will open and boys for which twelve long hours will be our own once more. If we have eyes we soon will lose sight of the good old game with its such bounciness and head the head that's sore. When we assemble on the bleachers we'll soon forget the three some creatures who fuss in politics; forget their ranting and their posing, the schemes and plots that they're discharging, forget their cheap John tricks. The grand old game must be suspended each year in the winter's cold, and while it's off the map, we all get sour and rusty, and all the air with language gets, and stand around and scrawl. Then like things sail our attention, they bring too numerous to mention, and we are in a trance; we think, to better our condition, that we must boost some politician to pump and circumstance. But all such things go on shooting when once we hear the umpire shouting his larynx at the mob; then grief and worry are forgotten, and politics seem stale and rotten, and care must jump its job. It's better far to seek the bleachers than share with patriotic creatures a big long campaign season; it's better far to win a pennant than to elect a brain-numb tenant for Washington's White House.

Two Exceptions.
The music master says very affably: "Now, you see, children, in a march we always have four beats to a measure, to accommodate the step; for I don't know anything that has three feet, except, perhaps, a milking stool." "Or a yard stick," adds a bright girl in the back row.

Constipation, if Neglected, Causes Serious Illness.

Constipation, if neglected, leads to almost innumerable complications affecting the general health. Many cases of typhoid fever, appendicitis and other severe diseases are traceable to prolonged clogging of the bowels. Regarding the effects of constipation, C. E. Ayers, 6 Sabine St., Montpelier, Vt., says: "I was afflicted with constipation and biliousness for years, and at times became so bad I would become unconscious. I have been in that condition many times. Physicians did not seem to be able to do me any good. I would become weak and for days at a time could do no work. Not long ago I got a box of Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets, and after using them found I had never tried anything that acted in such a mild and effective manner. I believe I have at last found the remedy that suits my case."

Thousands of people are sufferers from habitual constipation and while possibly realizing something of the danger of this condition, yet neglect too long to employ proper curative measures until serious illness often results. The advice of all physicians is, "keep your bowels clean," and it's good advice.

Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets are sold by all druggists, at 25 cents a box containing 25 doses. If not found satisfactory, your money is returned. MILLS MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

THE WAY OF A MAN

By EMERSON HOUGH

Copyright, 1911, by the Oaking Publishing Company

"My father loves me dearly," she replied slowly. "But he cannot marry me until I wish. No, I am not married, and I never will be. Goodbye!" I did not see Colonel Sheraton. He passed on through to his seat in the next morning I spent in writing a letter to my agents at Huntington, with the request that they should inform Colonel Sheraton at once on the business situation, since now he was in touch by mail. The alternative was offered him of taking over my father's interests through these creditors, accepting them as partners or purchasing their rights or doing what my father had planned to do for him, which was to care individually for the joint account, and then to allot each partner a dividend interest, carrying a clear title.

All these matters I explained to my mother. Then I told her fully what had occurred at the village the night previous between Ellen Meriwether and my fiancée. She sat silent. "In any case," I concluded, "it would not be better if you and I could leave this place forever and begin again somewhere else."

She turned to me slowly, with a smile upon her face. "Whatever these says," was her answer. "I shall not ask thee to try to mend what is mended. There is like thy father, she said. 'I shall not try to change thee. Go, then, thy own way. Only hear me, thou cannot mend the un-mendable by such a wrongful marriage.' But I went, and under my arm I bore a certain roll of crinkled, hairy parchment.

This was on the morning of Wednesday, in November, the day following the national election in the year 1800. News traveled more slowly then, but we in our valley might expect word from Washington by noon of that day. If Lincoln won, then the south would secede. Two nations would inevitably be formed, and, if necessary, issue would be joined between them as soon as the leaders could formulate their plans for war. Our state was divided, our valley especially so, peace sentiment there being strong. Few of us there, whether Unionists or not, had much better than contempt for the un-mendable man from the west, Lincoln, that most pathetic figure of our history, later loved by north and south alike as greatest of our great men. We did not know him in our valley. All of us there, Unionists or secessionists, for peace or for war, dreaded to hear of his election.

Colonel Sheraton met me at the door, his face flushed, his brow frowning. He was all politics. "Have you any news?" he demanded. "Have you heard from Leesburg, Washington?" "Not as yet," I answered, "but there should be messages from Leesburg within the next few hours." We had no telegraph in our valley at that time. "I have arranged with the postmaster to let us all know up here the instant he gets word," said Sheraton. "If that black abolitionist, Lincoln, wins, they're going to fire on us until shot in the street, and we can hear it up this valley this far. If the south wins, then two evils, as fast as they can load. So, Mr. Cowles, if we hear a single shot it is war-war, I tell you!"

"Colonel Sheraton," I said to him, "my conduct has not been in the least above reproach, and your daughter has not told you all that she ought to have told."

A door opened at the side of the room, where a narrow stairway ran down from the second floor, and there appeared the short, stocky figure, the iron gray mane of our friend, Dr. Samuel Bond, physician for two counties, then, bachelor, benefactor, man of charity, despite his lanceet, his quill and his calomel.

"Ah, doctor," began Colonel Sheraton, "here is our young friend back from his travels again. I'm going to tell you now, as I think I may without much risk, that there is every hope the Cowles family will win in this legal tangle which has threatened them lately—with handsomely too. You see, Mr. Cowles," he added to me, "Dr. Bond has stepped in as he passed by for a look at my daughter. Miss Grace seems just a trifle indisposed this morning. Nothing in the least serious, of course."

We all turned again as the front door opened. Harry Sheraton entered. "Come, son," exclaimed his father, "draw up, draw up with us. Pour us a drink around, son, for the success of our two families. You, doctor, are glad as I am—that I know."

But Dr. Bond did not seem glad. He paused, looking strangely at me and at our host. "Harry," said he, "suppose you go look in the hall for my saddle bags. I have left my medicine case."

The young man turned, but for no reason apparently, stopped at the door and presently joined us again. "May I ask for Miss Grace this morning, doctor?" I began politely. "Yes," interjected Colonel Sheraton. "That's the girl? She ought to be with a clear title."

All these matters I explained to my mother. Then I told her fully what had occurred at the village the night previous between Ellen Meriwether and my fiancée. She sat silent. "In any case," I concluded, "it would not be better if you and I could leave this place forever and begin again somewhere else."

"But come in," he added hastily. "I keep you waiting. I am glad to see you this morning, sir. From my daughter I learn that you have returned from a somewhat successful journey—that matters seem to mend for you. We are all pleased to learn it. I offer you my hand, sir. My daughter has advised me of her decision and your own. Your conduct throughout, Mr. Cowles, has been most manly, quite above reproach. I could want no better son to join my family."

with Miss Grace last night." The old man sprang at me, his eyes glaring about the room for a weapon. He saw it—a long knife with ivory handle and bladed blade on the ledge where I myself had placed it when I last was there. Dr. Bond caught Colonel Sheraton and held him fast.

"Wait," I said. "Wait! Let us have it all understood plainly. Then let us take it up in any way you Sheratons prefer."

"Stop," I said, "cried the stern faced doctor, as honest a man, I think, as ever drew the breath of life. He hurried his shrewd form against Colonel Sheraton again as I released him. "That boy is lying to us both, I tell you. I say he's not to blame, and I know it. I know it, I say. I'm her physician. Listen, you, Sheraton. You shall not harm a man who has led like this, like a gentleman, to save you and your girl!"

"Curse you both!" sobbed the struggling man. "Let me go! Let me alone! Didn't I hear him—didn't you hear him admit it?" He broke free and stood panting in the center of the room, we between him and the weapon. "Harry," he called out sharply. "The door burst open."

"A gun—my pistol—get me something, boy! Arm yourself. We'll kill them!" "Harry," I called out to him in turn. "Do nothing of the sort! You'll have me to handle in this. Some things I'll endure, but not all things always. I swear I'll stand this no longer from all of you or any of you. Listen to me, listen, I say. It is as Dr. Bond says. So now they did listen duly."

CHAPTER XXIII. Face to Face.

I AM GUILELESS of any harm or wish of harm to any woman of this family," I went on. "Search your own hearts. Put blame where it belongs. But do not think you can crowd me or force me to do what I do not freely offer."

"It is true," said Dr. Bond. "I tell you, what he says could not be any possibility he anything else but true. He's just back home. He has been gone all summer."

Colonel Sheraton was a proud man, and one of courage. It irked him sore that revenge must wait.

"Now," said I, "I have something to add to the record. I hoped that a part of my story could be left forever, except for Miss Grace and me alone. I have not been blameless. For that reason I was willing freely—not through force—to do what I could in the way of punishment to myself and salvation for her. But now as this thing comes up I can no longer shield her or myself, or any of you. We'll have to go to the bottom now."

I flung out on the table the roll which I had brought with me to show that morning to Grace Sheraton—the ragged hide, holding writings placed there by my hand and that of another.

"This," I said, "must be shown to you all, Colonel Sheraton, I have been very gravely at fault. I was alone for some months in the wilderness with another woman. I loved her very much. I forgot your daughter at that time because I found I loved her less. Through force of circumstances I lived with this other woman very closely for some months. We foresaw no immediate release. I loved her, and she loved me—the only time I knew what love really meant. I admit it. We made this contract of marriage between us. It was never enforced. We never were married because that contract was never signed by us both. Here it is. Examine it."

It lay there before us. I saw its words again stare up at me. I saw again the old pictures of the great mountains and the cloudless sky and the cities of peace wandering on the far horizon. I gazed once more upon that different and more happy world, when I saw, blurring before my eyes, the words, "I, John Cowles—L. Ellen Meriwether, take thee—take thee—for better, for worse—ill death do us part." I saw her name, "E-L-I-N."

"Harry," said I, turning on him swiftly. "Your father is old. This is for you and me, I think. I shall be at your service soon."

His face paled. But that of his father was now gray, very old and gray. "Treachery," he murmured. "Treachery! You sly little girl. My God, sir, she should not marry you though she died!" "This!" He put out his hand toward the hide scroll.

"No," I said to him. "This is mine. The record of my fault belongs to me. The question for you is only in regard to the punishment."

"We are four men here," I added presently, "and it seems to me that first of all we owe protection to the woman who has been wronged. Moreover, I repeat that, though her error is not mine, it was perhaps pride or sorrow or anger with me which led her to her own fault. It was Gordon Orme who told her that I was false to her and aided her about me and this other woman. It was Gordon Orme, Colonel Sheraton, I do not doubt, sir. I found him in your yard, here at midnight when I last was here. And, sir, there was a light—a light. I agreed with your daughter that it was without question a light that some servant had left by chance at a window."

I wish never to hear again such a groan as broke from that old man's lips. He was shaken and broken when he put out his hand to me. "Boy," said he, "have mercy. Forgive. Can you—could you—"

"Can you yourself forgive this?" I answered, pointing to the scroll. "I admit to you I love Ellen Meriwether yet and always will. Sir, if I married your daughter, it could only be to leave her within the hour."

"Colonel Sheraton," said Dr. Bond, "it seems to me that we have no quarrel here among ourselves. We all want to do what is best done now to make amends for what has not always been best done. Mr. Cowles has given every proof we could ask—we could not ask more of any man—you have no right to ask so much. He wishes, at great cost to himself, I think, to do what he can to save your girl's happiness and honor. He admits his own fault." He looked at me, savagely shaking a finger, but went on. "As it chances, I am curious in other professions than my own sometimes—I read in the law sometimes, again in theology, literature. I wish to be an educated man so far as I may be, since a universal education was denied me. Now, I say to you, from my reading in the law, a strong question arises whether the two who wrote this covenant of marriage are not at this moment man and wife! There is a definite, mutual promise, a consideration moving from each side, the same consideration in each case, the promise from each bearing the same intent and value and having the same qualifying clauses. The contract is definite—it is dated. It is evidently the record of a unanimous intent, an identical frame of mind between the two making it at that time. It is signed and sealed in full by one party, no doubt in his own hand. It is written and acknowledged by the other party in her own hand."

"But not signed," I broke in. "See, it is not signed. She said she would sign it one letter each week—weeks and weeks—until at last this, which was only our engagement, should with the last letter make our marriage. Gentlemen," I said to them, "it was an honest contract. It was all the formality we could have, all the ceremony we could have. It was all that we could do. I stand before you promised to two women. Before God I was promised to one. I loved her. I could do no more."

(To be Continued)

Then She Pondered. "If you were fair," his wife said, "you would acknowledge that I have done much to make you what you are." "Oh, I acknowledge," he replied, "that you deserve nearly all the credit for making me what I am. By the way, do you happen to realize that what I am is head over heels in debt?"—Judge.

HE IS THE "LOST" DOG COP

It seems second nature to most dogs to get "lost" at some time in their lives. The Gazette lost and found column has carried descriptions of lost dogs of every kind, from the "blue-bloods" with lengthy pedigrees, down to the common street "mutt," from little puppies that could hardly waddle, to the old, seasoned veterans that should have better sense than to get lost.

In most instances the dogs have been restored to their rightful owners through the descriptions published in The Gazette lost column.

If your dog gets lost, don't take chances of having him "kicked around" and abused by careless folk—order a "lost" ad in The Gazette. A "lost" ad usually recovers the dog.

At The Theatre

SOUTHERN TELLS OF HIS FATHER.

E. H. Southern, who appears here with Julia Marlowe in Shakespearean repertoire at the Myers Theatre, on Wednesday, April 17, in "The Taming of the Shrew," lately talked of his father, Edward A. Southern, one of the most successful comedians that the English or American stage has known. "My father," said E. H. Southern, "was ahead of his time. Though his death occurred the same year which witnessed my professional debut on the stage, I saw him, of course, many times, and when I was a boy in London I heard my father discuss acting and the drama with Dickens and Thackeray and other literary and artistic lights. So I know what his theories about acting were. Clippings from the press of England and America mention one characteristic which predominated in his playing and which in his theory of acting was his major contention. I mean his naturalism. In that he was ahead of his time. He had no pleasure in the work of the strenuous and noisy actors whose shouting covered a vacuum where imagination and suggestion should be. When he was in New York, so charmed was he with the realism and naturalism of the great French actress, Rachel, that he gave up an engagement, much needed at the time, in order to follow her and listen again and again to her wonderful art. That, by the way, was in 1855, and it was her last American tour, when she was marked for death."

In a very important sense, then, E. A. Southern became a pupil of Rachel. He followed her to school and the school was the stage, and the older Southern paid for his education by forfeiting an engagement which, in those days of his early struggling, he badly needed. From her of whom the French critic wrote, "We possess the most marvelous actress that this generation has seen, Mlle. Rachel," the older Southern learned something of the art of suggestion and repose; what, in his portraits, he should leave out and what put in. Rachel was the great Ramson's pupil, and Ramson had from Talma's own lips the great tragedian's ideas on the complex art of acting. These Rachel learned from Ramson, and Southern learned from Rachel.

You can see how easily a player of 1911 can be linked with one of a century and a half ago!

CHARGE OBTAINING MONEY FRAUDULENTLY

George M. Reeller, Accused, Declares Innocence of Intent to Defraud Rau of $10.

George M. Reeller, a mechanic employed in the South Janesville shops of the North-Western railway, was arraigned before Judge Piffard in the municipal court this morning on the charge of fraudulently obtaining the sum of $10 from Fred Rau, a West Milwaukee street saloonkeeper, by presenting him a check on the First National Bank, signed by himself and payable to Fred Rau, knowing at the time that the check was worthless and that he had no funds in the bank out of which it could be paid.

Reeller protested his innocence of any intention to defraud, though admitting passing the check last Saturday afternoon. He declared that he was intoxicated at the time and that he expected to make the check good from wages that were due him yesterday. However, when he came to draw his wages he found that they were garnished to pay a dentist's bill and a debt which he owed a fellow boarder named Johnson. Judge Piffard set his examination for two o'clock Thursday afternoon and demanded $300 bail for his appearance in court at that time.

Complaint against Reeller was made late yesterday afternoon by Mr. Rau, and soon afterward John Weber, a saloonkeeper at the corner of West Milwaukee and Franklin streets made a similar complaint. Police Officer Paul Chapman was sent in search of Reeller and found him near the St. Paul depot. Reeller was arrested, and he was brought to the police station and a bank check book and the change he had secured from the saloonkeepers was found in his pocket. Mr. Weber later decided that he would not prosecute.

Reeller claims this is the first time he was ever brought into court charged with an offense. He came here from Chicago and claims to be well acquainted with Fanny Burke, a saloonkeeper who was formerly in business here. The penalty for the offense with which Reeller is charged is a minimum fine of $100 or six months in jail.

PIGEONS ON A JAMBOREE

Drink Liquor Spilled in the Street and Gave Real Exhibition of Drunkenness.

A heavy truck loaded high with kegs of liquor was jolting across a line of downtown car tracks when one of the kegs toppled and fell from the top of the pile into the street. It was thoroughly smashed, so the truckman whipped up his team and went his way without stopping. The rum flowed out over the street—one little dent in the paving collecting a visible puddle of it.

In a few minutes a pigeon came fluttering down to drink at the pool thus fortunately provided for thirsty birds. The initial taste was a surprise, but a second and a third soon followed, and soon the pigeon tottered flusteringly away, too overcome to fly. Other birds, seeing him there and anxious to wet their parching throats on so sultry a day, followed their brother in his path of wicked intemperance.

Five minutes later a passerby was astonished to see a dozen pigeons in the gutter of the otherwise deserted street, some dancing drunkenly, others already sound asleep. A few feet away a hound of disreputable appearance was creeping up, slowly and a trifle untidily, on his unsuspecting and blubbery quarry. As he was almost among the birds his feet went suddenly in several directions and he lay in the gutter among the pigeons, growling sleepily to himself, for he, too, was drunk.

Misleading Names.

Practically all the wooden clocks called Dutch are made in the village of Freyburg, in the Black Forest. This misnomer is due to simple mispronunciation—"Deutsch" meaning, of course, German. Nothing is more natural than to assume that India ink comes from India, but it does not, and never did, any more than does India rubber. India ink is a Chinese product, and India rubber comes from South America. Camel's hair brushes are not made from the hair of camels, but from the hair of the tails of Russian and Siberian squirrels. Camel's hair is, however, employed in the manufacture of certain fabrics to be made into shawls, etc., and is sometimes mixed with silk.

For Good or for Evil?

So surely as the day and the night alternately follow one another, does every day when it yields to darkness, and every night when it passes into dawn, bear with it its own tale of the results which it has silently wrought upon each of us, for good or for evil.

—William Ewart Gladstone.

Mrs. Wm. Henning, 281 Morris St., Fond du Lac, Wis., tells how Foley's Honey and Tar Compound cured her. "I suffered with a very severe cold, but after taking Foley's Honey and Tar Compound my cold got better, and I also gave it to my daughter with the same good results. I am glad to recommend it to all people who suffer with coughs and colds." Badger Drug Co.

GAZETTE RECOGNIZED EVEN IN CAPE TOWN

South African Printing Company Sends for Particulars About the Rock County Circulation Map.

That the Janesville Gazette is known even as far south as Capetown, South Africa, is evidenced by the following letter received from the Argus Printing and Publishing Company, Ltd., of Capetown. Their letter is as follows:

The Janesville Gazette.

Dear Sir: We often in "Printer's Ink" you offer advertisers a circulation map and as there is nothing of this kind in South Africa, we should be glad if you would send us a copy.

We are anxious to increase our advertisements and if you have no objection would be glad to adopt your idea (permission being granted of course) to effect this purpose.

(Signed)

The Argus company also prints the "Star" at Johannesburg, "The Rhodesia Herald" at Salisbury, "The Post" at Bloemfontein, and "The Chronicle" at Bulawayo.

Pawn Tombs of Relatives.

In times of financial difficulties the Leechmans, residents of the southwestern islands of Japan, sometimes pawn the graves of their relatives. They are always redeemed, however, failure to do so meaning family disgrace. The turtle-back shaped tombs, usually located on a hillside facing the water, are elaborate affairs of stone and cement, and their cost and upkeep often bankrupt the family.

Macedonia Rich in Minerals.

Since remote times the soil of Macedonia has had the reputation of containing many precious minerals. Not only was this stated by historians, but it is evident by the remains of great works undertaken by the ancients in the mining centers, and especially on the Peninsula of Chalcidica. These works reached the highest point of development under Philip of Macedonia and Alexander the Great.

A Permanent Benefit.

J. L. Southern, Clerk Eau Claire House, Eau Claire, Wis., reiterates his statement that Foley Kidney Pills cured him. He says: "Several years ago I wrote you of my remarkable cure by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. One of the worst features of my trouble was sleeplessness. Now to show the lasting benefit of Foley Kidney Pills, after all this time I have had no return of the kidney trouble and I sleep soundly. I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to lots of people who repeat the great good they do them." Badger Drug Co.

An Open Letter to a Live Man who Wants to Take Hold of a Money Making Proposition

There is no more attractive business than a live, hustling man can engage in than selling automobiles.

It is a pleasant, dignified occupation, and better still—it is decidedly profitable and but small capital is required.

You don't have to sell many cars before you can count up a nice sum for your season's work and every car you sell helps sell another.

In nearly every town of 500 or more there are many people just waiting for someone to show them their money's worth in an automobile.

The motor car is no longer a fad to be enjoyed by the millionaire; men of moderate means—business and professional men—recognize it as a daily necessity.

There is a constantly growing demand for the right kind of a car.

We'll grant you that some motor cars will sell faster than others. A great deal depends on the kind of a car that is offered.

A good salesman can sell a pretty poor car, but just an ordinary live hustler, with a good car, can establish a big, paying business for himself in a short time—a business that will continue to grow larger and easier to handle with each succeeding year.

Which brings us to the point that we want a live wire representative for a good car—one of the best on the market. All possible co-operation and assistance will be given in helping bring about sales.

Are you the man we want?
